"The South 40" by JAMES A. SMITH EXTENSION AGENT

This past week we were in Milwaukee attending the annual meeting of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents. So our comments this week will be about the things we saw and farms visited.

No question - there's a tremendous corn crop in the West. Everyone we talked with were talking about 100 plus bushels per acre. An agent from Iowa said that corn land this year rented for as much as $125 per acre.

A luncheon speaker from International Harvester Company said - "Don't you forget that $3 corn and $6 soybeans are just as important to us as it is to every farmer."

We'll harvest the highest yield of corn and soybeans in America's history. As late as 6 p.m. Saturday combines were in full swing in the soybean fields across Northern Ohio.

The black prairie soils of the corn belt with a top soil of 40 inches thick is ideal for commercial farming. I was on one farm that had two 50' x 300' slatted floor bunk feeders for finishing steers. This farmer was quite proud of the fact that in 1939 he was a tenant farmer. This year he owns 980 acres and rents an additional 80 acres. 850 acres is in continuous corn and the remainder is in pasture for grazing yearling steers.

Each of the feeding floors will handle 480 steers. He had a load of choice steers going out the day I was there selling for $50.50 and had bought replacement yearlings out of Kentucky for $33.

I was impressed with the newness of his field equipment; so I asked how often he traded. He said my son graduated from college last year and he takes care of this equipment like it was a new car - he washes, waxes each piece of equipment and if a scratch is on it he repaints; this equipment is at least four years old. It looked as if it had been delivered from the dealer that morning. I felt that this was certainly a good example of preventive maintenance. He pointed out that when it comes time to work he didn't want any problems. At corn planting time they plant 250 acres a day with a 12-row corn planter in fields that are a mile long. Corn is planted at 27,000 kernels per acre and they hope for a stand of 22 to 24,000 stalks. Their average yield is 157 bushels.

The manure is collected under the slatted floor and spread twice a year - once following corn harvest and again - just before planting. They spread the one million gallons of manure in four days using a 3000 gallon spreader.

On another farm which had 4000 acres - 2200 acres of seed corn, 1000 beef cattle and finished 2000 pigs.

I suggested to this grower that one of the problems our growers have is lack of uniformity of corn seed. That all medium flats would not fit the same plate and it would appear that this could be corrected. He said, "No way" - corn is graded by width and thickness, but there is no way to grade on length and this is the problem."

Then there was a visit to a dairy farm that milks 180 cows, grows 800 corn for cash sales, has 8 Harvester units and three conventional units. When this dairyman wasn't working his corn or taking care of the cattle he played a French horn is a symphony orchestra. He had three hired persons helping operate the 1600 acre farm.

Well we could go on but there's no doubt that agriculture is a vitual industry to America and to the world. This minority group of farmers, 4% of our population, play an important role in welfare of everyone. I was happy to be a part of this magnificant industry.

OCTOBER IS RESCUE SQUAD MONTH

MRS. JOHN THOMAS WILLIAMS
the former Miss Deborah Kay Caldwell

Wed In Double Ring Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Deborah Kay Caldwell to John Thomas Williams took place Saturday evening at 7:30 in the Appomattox Court House Presbyterian Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David R. Caldwell and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Edith Meggginson Williams, all of Appomattox, and the late George S. Williams.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. D. E. Caldwell, Jr. of Appomattox and Mrs. W. D. Torrence of Lynchburg. The groom is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Megginson of Appomattox.

The Rev. Cecil Dalton, pastor of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of nuptial selections was presented by Mrs. Joel D. Carnefix, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Henry Gibson, vocalist. Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a dress fashioned of candlelight peau de soie and venice lace. A bibb of lace appliqued on the empire bodice, which is finished with a high Victorian neckline and leg of mutton sleeves. A cummerbund of peau de soie encircles the high rise waistline and ends in a bow in back. Full floor length skirt ending in a chapel train and a deep band of lace finishes the hemline. The veil was an elbow length of silk illusion, attached to a Tudor lace cap. The bride carried a bouquet of pink starbust pom poms, white butterfly roses, German statice, showered with Jacqueline roses and centered with a bridal orchid.

Mrs. William D. Thorne of Fairfax, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and attendants were Mrs. Mrs. Robert Williams and Mrs. Donald Williams, both of Appomattox and sisters-in-law of the bridegroom, Miss Susan Cedar of Fredericksburg and Miss Nancye Mathews, of Richmond. The attendants wore full floor length identical scarlet dresses with empire bodice finished with a high neckline and butterfly sleeves. They carried nosegay bouquets of pink starburst pom poms, German statice with Jacqueline roses and long pink velvet ribbon.

George S. Williams of Appomattox was his brother's best man and ushers were Robert Williams and Donald Williams, brothers of the bridegroom, David R. Caldwell, Jr., brother of the bride, and Stephen Wilson, all of Appomattox.

Miss Denise Drinkard and Master Dennis W. Drinkard, Jr., niece and nephew of the bridegroom, were flower girl and ring bearer. Miss Drinkard wore a gown of candlelight satin fashioned after the bride's gown.

The bride's mother wore a floor length gown of blue floral print, and the bridegroom's mother wore a floor length mint green gown.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell entertained with a reception at the Falling River Country Club.
